SOFTWARE & DATA

Polish Sejm Speeches 1991-2019

The data contains all speeches held in the Polish Lower House, the Sejm, in the time period 1991–2019. The data can be accessed and downloaded from the Harvard Dataverse.

TADA – The Text as Data App

TADA is a graphical user interface (GUI) written in R Shiny that allows users to apply methods for quantitative text analysis without any knowledge of R or any other programming language. TADA is joint work with Stefan Müller (University College Dublin).

Development version of TADA is available on GitHub

Browser based version of TADA is available on <https://tada-gui.shinyapps.io/tada/>

LMP – The Local Manifesto Project

The Local Manifesto Project (LMP) collects and analyzes parties' electoral manifestos. The project is inspired by similar projects that have analyzed party manifestos at the national and regional level. Analyzing local party manifestos is particularly important as we lack systematic and comparable information about party competition at the local level. The analysis of local party manifestos can be a solution to this lack of data. The LMP offers a graphical user interface (GUI) to the database and allows applying common text analysis methods to the text corpus. The LMP is joint work with Martin Gross (LMU Munich) and can be accessed via <http://localpartymanifestos.de/>

Lower Saxony Local Election Results Data Archive

The Lower Saxony Local Election Results Data Archive provides access to various election results at the local level in the German state of Lower Saxony. All types of elections – federal, regional, European, and different types of local elections – are covered. Individual elections and parties can be selected. This app is part of the research project 'Nie.Kom' funded by the State of Lower Saxony.

The Lower Saxony Local Election Results Data Archive can be accessed via:

Scientific use files can be accessed via: <https://uol.de/polsys/niekom>
